

Teambuilding

On January 28, 2011, Mr. Timothy Thom ran a professional development on working towards a common goal. As teachers, our common goal is to have our entire group of students meet with success. He gathered 30 teachers from our building to work on an exercise about building team players and working together. These 30 teachers were asked to travel from one side of the "island" to the other using only the materials they were given. They needed to work cooperatively and decide who would be responsible for what task. How did they solve their problem of making it across the sea to the other island? Take a look!

It looks like learning can be both educational and fun!